

MASTER OF ARTS IN ENGLISH

The MA Program in English at Sam Houston State University has three defined goals, all of which share the common aim of preparing graduates as scholars, teachers, writers, and advocates for the Humanities. The program strives to be dynamic, encompassing, and diverse in its approach to the study of language and literature, offering both surveys of Classical, British, and American literature, as well as seminars that challenge these traditions by taking into account diverse perspectives, other literatures, and a broad range of methodologies. By completing a series of seminars in the English language, in literature and textual studies, and in research methods and literary theory, the program aims to teach students how to:

1. demonstrate the ability to think theoretically and critically about language and literature, including the ability to apply research methods and critical theories reflective of the current state of scholarship;
2. demonstrate the ability to write cogently about language and literature, with an awareness of interdisciplinary connections; and
3. demonstrate effective professional practices in research, analysis, and communication.

These goals are aligned with the University's mission of providing high quality education, scholarship, and service to qualified students for the benefit of regional, state, national, and international constituencies.

Applicants must submit all application materials directly to the (<http://www.shsu.edu/dept/graduate-admissions/prospective-students.html>) Office of Graduate Admissions by the relevant deadline (see below).
