Interim Chair: Nam Young Kim, Ph.D. (nyk001@shsu.edu)

Contact Information: (936) 294-4445; Dan Rather Communications Building 212

Website: Department of Mass Communication (<http://www.shsu.edu/academics/mass-communication/>)

By providing one-on-one contact with faculty from a variety of theoretical and practical backgrounds, the Department of Mass Communication exposes students to a combination of hands-on production classes, professional development classes, and traditional theory/criticism classes. The Mass Communication program at Sam Houston State University offers a unique educational experience for students. Our graduates develop:

1. Media literacy skills that are increasingly required in our media-saturated contemporary experience, and
2. Skills especially applicable to the emerging technologically-driven marketplace.

There are seven undergraduate MCOM programs:

- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Multiplatform Journalism
- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Broadcast Production
- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Film
- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Public Relations & Advertising
- Bachelor of Fine Arts, Major in Film and Television Production
- Bachelor of Arts, Double Major in Education and Mass Communication: Journalism
- Bachelor of Science, Major in Agricultural Communication (School of Agricultural Sciences)

There are three undergraduate MCOM minors:

- Minor in Mass Communication
- Minor in Film Studies
- Minor in Sports Media

Graduates can enter a variety of fields, including but not limited to video production, print and television news, broadcast and cable sales, media management, advertising, digital media production, public relations, and corporate media. In addition, students may supplement their degrees with educational requirements that allow them to become certified media specialists in public school systems with a concentration in Mass Communication Education. Students are encouraged to take advantage of the MCOM Department's internship program.

Mission

The mission of the Department of Mass Communication is to acquire, synthesize, and disseminate knowledge related to print, broadcast, cable, online, and other forms of electronic communication for the purpose of producing media literate, socially aware, and professionally competent graduates.

Program emphasis is on the preparation of ethical and technologically proficient communication professionals who are capable of making a positive impact on their environment and on society. Our graduates will acquire the skills for today's media marketplace and also develop the broader, theoretical background for:

- Negotiating convergence in the media fields;
- Communicating with and serving various populations;
- Understanding the economic and political pressures on professional integrity; and
- Intelligently assessing and interpreting unfolding events in a media-saturated experience.

Highlights

The Department of Mass Communication offers a comprehensive blend of courses, including but not limited to global communication, film production and theory, media production and reporting, audience analysis, media sales, mass communication theory and history, and writing for print, broadcast, and digital media. The curriculum introduces students to each of the four emphasis areas during their first year in the mass communication program. During the remaining three years, students can register for classes in digital audio and video editing, film production and directing, feature writing, research techniques, communication law, media marketing, scriptwriting, global communication, and multiplatform journalism.

Students with a major or minor in the MCOM Department will have the opportunity, as part of their college experience, to work with departmental media: 90.5 KSHU-FM, 90.5.2 El Gato, Cable Channel 7, The Houstonian newspaper, student news, Priority One PR, and Bearkat Sports.

Suggested Free Electives

Students in Mass Communication may select a specialized area of free elective classes compatible with their professional goals. In choosing an appropriate set of free electives, students should discuss their career plans with an advisor. For example, free electives in Management and Marketing are desirable for Public Relations & Advertising. History, English, foreign languages, Art, Theatre, Sociology, and other social sciences and fine arts are helpful to all emphases. Students with a Multiplatform Journalism emphasis could benefit from free electives in Political Science or History.

Career Opportunities

There are a variety of career opportunities in the Mass Communication field. Some graduates pursue traditional positions in the mass media marketplace (reporting/editing/writing for newspapers, television stations, radio stations, or magazines). MCOM graduates may also pursue careers with public relations and advertising agencies, with corporate communication programs, and within government, hospital, and other institutional settings. Graduates can affiliate with nonprofit agencies or move into sales and other promotional positions. Increasingly, graduates have been teaching in high schools, pursuing advanced graduate studies, and working in emerging and social media.

Program Specific Requirements

All students in the Mass Communication department will complete a four-course core that provides a foundation for success in a variety of media fields. To help students understand the contemporary media environment, the core includes an analysis of media and society. Because specific skills are required in the media marketplace, the applied Writing for Mass Media and T.V. & Film Production courses are part of the departmental core. A course in mass media law and ethics examines legal issues pertinent to the print, electronic, and emerging digital press.

All Mass Communication and Agricultural Communication (Ag/Com) majors and minors must earn a grade of 'C' or better in each MCOM, MCFL, MCJR, MCPA, or MCPD course, and successfully pass the departmental required Grammar Module with a score of 80 or higher.

- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Broadcast Production
- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Film
- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Multiplatform Journalism
- Bachelor of Arts, Double Major in Education and Mass Communication: Journalism
- Bachelor of Arts, Major in Mass Communication: Public Relations & Advertising
- Bachelor of Fine Arts, Major in Film and TV Production
- Bachelor of Science, Major in Agricultural Communication (School of Agricultural Sciences)
- Minor in Arts and Popular Culture
- Minor in Film Studies
- Minor in Mass Communication
- Minor in Sports Media

Student Organizations and Activities

The Department of Mass Communication supports student chapters of the American Advertising Federation (AAF), the National Broadcasting Society (NBS), the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association (TIPA), Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ), Agricultural Communicators of Tomorrow (ACT), National Association of Hispanic Journalists (NAHJ), the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA), and the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ).

Internships

Junior and senior level students who meet requirements may enroll in semester-long professional internships. MCOM students have interned in many locations, including: national media outlets, such as CBS News, Entertainment Tonight, ESPN, David Letterman, The Jerry Springer Show, MTV, The Cannes Film Festival, South by Southwest, and Disney World; regional media outlets such as KTLA-TV in Los Angeles, KHOU-TV in Houston, The Conroe Courier, The Victoria Advocate, Pierpont Public Relations, and the Houston Symphony; and at specialized institutional sites, such as the Texas State Senate.
